

Regular Mammograms and Lowering Your Blood Pressure

Set 2016 On a Healthy Course

Inevitably, the start of the new year almost always reminds us of New Year's resolutions. Most people take this opportunity to start anew and make sweeping life changing resolutions. However, life-changing resolutions need not be huge to be effective. Consider committing yourself to better health by simply participating in an annual mammogram program and managing your hypertension—two attainable goals, yet two things that could save and/or improve your life.

A mammogram is a low-dose breast x-ray that is currently the most effective way to diagnose breast cancer early and therefore give breast cancer patients the best options and outcomes when it comes to treatment. Mammograms closely examine the breast to look for changes that are not normal. Breast lumps and calcifications can be detected by mammograms. Of course, self breast exams should also be done at home regularly as a compliment to mammograms in maintaining good breast health.

Mammograms are performed with an x-ray machine by an x-ray technician and the images are read by a radiologist. Mammograms can be performed even with breast implants, but those with implants should be sure to inform the technician.

Lately, there have been some differing opinions on the recommended age to begin regular mammogram screenings which is why women should discuss mammogram screening with their health care providers. Your doctor will make a recommendation for you based on medical guidelines and your personal and family health history.

Under the APWU Health Plan annual routine mammograms are covered at 100% with in-network providers, starting at age 35 as follows:

- From age 35 through 39, one mammogram during this five year period
- From age 40 through 64, one mammogram every calendar year
- At age 65 and older, one mammogram every two consecutive calendar years

Hypertension, also known as high blood pressure, is a common condition that carries with it very serious risks if left unchecked, including heart attack, heart failure, and stroke. Most often, hypertension develops silently over the course of many years without any symptoms. The few symptoms that may present themselves—headaches, shortness of breath, and nosebleeds—are such common conditions they aren't typically recognized as symptoms of high blood pressure and even worse, these symptoms don't occur until hypertension has reached a life-threatening stage. There are two types of hypertension—primary and secondary.

Primary hypertension simply develops over time while secondary hypertension presents itself suddenly, results in even higher blood pressure, and can be caused by such things as sleep apnea, kidney problems, adrenal gland problems, thyroid problems, defects in blood vessels, certain medications (birth control pills, cold remedies, over-the-counter pain relievers), and alcohol abuse and illegal drug use.

Risk factors for hypertension include age, race (hypertension is particularly common among African Americans), family history, being overweight, not being physically active, using tobacco, too much salt in your diet, too little potassium and Vitamin D in your diet, drinking too much alcohol, stress, and certain chronic conditions.

Testing for high blood pressure is done simply with an inflatable arm cuff, something that is part of every regular medical appointment. You can also monitor your blood pressure in between doctor's visits with a home blood pressure monitor or with a blood pressure cuff machine often available for use in a drug store or pharmacy. If you have hypertension the most important thing you can do to get healthy is to change your lifestyle by eating a healthy diet with less salt, exercising regularly, quitting tobacco products, and maintaining a healthy weight. If these things are not enough to control your high blood pressure, your doctor may prescribe medication.

The Health Plan offers the members free access to the Hypertension Management Program. Health Plan members with hypertension should enroll and participate in the Hypertension Management Program to receive 100% coverage for:

- In-network medical office visits for the specific purpose of lowering your blood pressure
- In-network lab tests related to hypertension management
- Generic drugs purchased through mail order
- Phone consultations with a coach every 90 days at your convenience

Make 2016 your best and healthiest year yet and make regular mammograms and lowering your blood pressure at the very top of your list of New Year's resolutions.

8 reasons why the APWU Health Plan is still the smart choice.

1. The personal touch

You are never just a number to us. We advocate for you at every step.

2. Comprehensive coverage

We take great pride in working hard to create and manage the kind of health plan our members deserve.

3. Affordable premiums

Choose from two plans, based on your personal needs.

4. Solid networks

Select from more than one million providers with no need for referrals.

5. Health management programs

We'll help you manage your weight, hypertension, diabetes, pregnancy, and tobacco use.

6. Member satisfaction
